Thomas is Senior Vice President of FM3IS Associates LLC, a facility management firm specialized in providing innovative, integrative and inspirational solutions that advance the performance of an organization's workforce, workplace and work processes. Thomas previously worked at Booz | Allen | Hamilton, where he led technical and consulting teams that developed strategies, courses of action, and practical solutions that shaped, improved and optimized the built environment. Prior to his return to civilian life, Thomas retired from military active duty after serving our nation for 20 years as an Air Force civil engineering officer, where he led people and managed programs supporting the development, acquisition, sustainment and protection of facilities at military locations throughout the U.S., Europe, Asia and the Middle East.

A staunch supporter of advancing facility management (FM) knowledge sharing and professional practices, Thomas serves as chairman of Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University's Facilities Management Degree Program Advisory Council, as a director on the National Institute of Building Science's Board of Directors, and previously served as chairman of the International Facility Management Association's Board of Directors. In an effort to also increase FM advocacy among stakeholders across the global community, Thomas regularly accepts invitations to share perspectives on facility management topics in trade magazine publications, and at professional industry events worldwide.

Credentialed as a Certified Facility Manager through the International Facility Management Association (IFMA), Thomas earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Architectural Studies, a Master's level certificate in Facility Management, a Master of Arts in Management, and a Masters of Military Operational Arts and Science. He's is a Fellow of the International Facility Management Association, and a recipient of Florida A&M University's Distinguish Alumni Award.
